'Major' UFC news coming to Canada

MMA The UFC is coming to Toronto next week to make what it bills as a "major announcement in Canada."

Co-owner Lorenzo Fertitta and president Dana White will be at Tuesday's news conference at the Rogers Centre.

The announcement is not expected to be about the sanctioning of mixed martial arts in Ontario, however.

DNA by design

Scientists create cell with computer, chemical mix

In revolutionary research that may end up altering our definition of life, scientists have created the first synthetic cell powered by artificially created DNA.

The achievement caps 15 years of work by a large team of researchers, led by Craig Venter of Human Genome Project fame, who engineered a chromosome and inserted it into a bacterium to create a new living entity.

"This is the first self-replicating species that we've had on the planet whose parent is a computer," Venter told a teleconference presented Thursday by the journal Science, which published the work.

"This is an important step we think both scientifically and philosophically," said Venter. "It certainly changed my views of the definitions of life and how life works."

Geneticist Stephen Scherer, a senior scientist at the Hospital for Sick Children, called the research an "impressive technical feat."

"I suspect that when we look back, this achievement will be seen as a landmark in biology having somewhat similar impact to when Dolly the cloned sheep was introduced to the world," Scherer, who was not involved in the research, said by email.

Venter said the synthetic cell is a first — and early — step in designing artificial life forms that could one day produce biological fuels, pharmaceuticals and even foods.

"We actually believe this is going to be a very powerful set of tools."

Genetic code

- The cell, which contains more than one million DNA base pairs, or genetic letters — a mere speck compared with the six billion in human DNA — was created by writing genetic code on a computer, then combining a cocktail of chemicals to create a chromosome.

CN Tower to shut for summit

Visitors to Toronto during next month's G20 summit can scratch a visit to the CN Tower off their list of things to do. Officials say the tower will be closed June 25-27 because of security concerns. The summit is being held at the nearby Toronto Convention Centre and protesters promise to be out in force.

Anti-poverty activist John Clark, an organizer for the Ontario Coalition Against Poverty, takes part in the Toronto Community Mobilization Network press conference Thursday in Toronto.

Group to protest G20 in support of ordinary citizens

An umbrella group concerned with various social issues says it plans to protest the G8 and G20 summits because the leaders do not represent the interests of ordinary people.

Organizer Adonis El-Jamal says the governments of the countries involved are interested in saving banks, but not people's livelihoods.

The Toronto Community Mobilization Network held a news conference Thursday to discuss the issues it hopes to highlight through protests and events related to the summits.

The G8 summit runs from June 25-26 in Huntsville, and the G20 takes place June 26-27 in Toronto.

El-Jamal says leaders should not be able to say they have achieved economic stability when their policies have led to higher unemployment, war and cuts to social services.

Meanwhile, a group called the Human Summit Project announced its alternative approach to "conscious civil engagement" surrounding the G20 summit.

Members will hold a one-hour silent meditation in Woodbine Park in Toronto on the second day of the two-day G20 summit.

Peterborough train could cost $1.5B, Metrolinx says

TRANSIT A Metrolinx study has dealt a severe blow to plans for a rail link between Peterborough and Union Station, saying the cost could soar as high as $1.5 billion.

But the Conservative MP for Peterborough says it won't stop his crusade for a commuter train option for the city 120 kilometres northeast of Toronto.

Dean Del Mastro, who accuses Metrolinx of a bias against the project because it falls too far outside the GTA, says he is assembling an independent panel of experts to reassess the cost.

The Metrolinx report, commissioned jointly by the provincial and federal governments, looked at three route options, with capital costs ranging from $541 million to $1.5 billion for the rail and trains.

Annual operating and maintenance would run from $21 million to $25 million annually for two trains travelling in each direction daily, making eight stops. It could initially attract about 1,900 riders on weekdays, says the study. An enhanced service would cost at least $43 million.

News in brief

ART The Toronto District School Board has opened its vault full of art — such as a famed $1.5-million Tom Thomson painting — rich with historical artifacts so teachers will soon be able to use them in their classrooms. By the end of this school year, Toronto teachers are to receive an email informing them that these items are available as part of a loan program, and how to access them, says Shawna White of the curator group hired by the board to help manage the collection.

CHARGED York region police have charged an 87-year-old man with sexual offences dating as far back as 1962. Police say the charges involve three alleged victims who were between the ages of five and 13 years old at the time. The assaults are alleged to have happened in Mount Albert, just north of Toronto, between 1962 and 1971. Dr. John Owen Slingerland, 87, of Mount Albert, was arrested Thursday and charged with 15 counts of indecent assault on a male.

Speaker fights to save view

Liberals urged to protect legislature skyline from condos

The impressive vista that greets visitors as they approach the Ontario legislature will be "permanently destroyed" if the government doesn't intervene to protect the historic site, Speaker Steve Peters warned Thursday.

Peters took the unusual step of pushing his own party to halt the planned construction of two high-rise condominium towers that would loom above the historic building in a last-ditch attempt to preserve its skyline.

He urged the governing Liberals to do everything in their power to stop the controversial development, which was approved Wednesday by the government-appointed Ontario Municipal Board.

"I am so disappointed in the decision of the OMB," said a visibly agitated Peters.

Another tall building — the Four Seasons hotel — was constructed behind the legislature years ago, but the new condos could open the door to even more development, Peters said.

He was joined in his appeal by NDP Leader Andrea Horwath, who said her party is willing to support legislation to protect the seat of provincial parliament from encroaching development.

But their pleas fell on deaf ears, with the government showing no signs of trying to stop the condo plans.

Tourism and Culture Minister Michael Chan refused to get involved, saying it's up to the city to designate the legislature a heritage site.

"My opinion is they are in the best position to exercise that power," Chan said.

Premier embarking on trade mission to Israel, Lebanon

TRIP Premier Dalton McGuinty is heading to the Middle East for a trade mission to Israel, the West Bank and Lebanon.

It will mark the first visit of an Ontario premier to Lebanon, government officials said, adding McGuinty will try to strengthen trade relations and cultural ties. The country is also a leading importer of pharmaceuticals and medical equipment.

The six-day trip begins in Israel Sunday, with visits to Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

The trade mission is largely focused on health care and life sciences — an area in which both Ontario and Israel excel, McGuinty said Wednesday ahead of this trip.

$1.1B

Ontario's trade with Israel amounts to about $1.1 billion — an 86 per cent increase since 2004, according to government officials.

There are about 900 life sciences companies in Ontario and in Israel, he noted. And trade between the two jurisdictions has grown "at a dramatic pace" in recent years.

"On a per capita basis, I'm not sure if there's anybody better at it on the planet in terms of scientists, business startups, Nobel laureates, et cetera, et cetera," McGuinty said.

Million-dollar ideas wanted

New firm to help inventors

HEATHER BUCHAN
for Metro Toronto

With the success of the Canadian reality show Dragon's Den and its U.S. counterpart, Shark Tank, more people are catching the "inventor" bug, believing they just might have the next million-dollar idea.

As a result, two men have launched a company called Inventor's Business Centre Canada in Toronto to help people make their ideas become reality.

Kevin Harrington, a pioneer of the infomercial who stars on ABC's Shark Tank, and Toronto businessman Steven Page, who runs the operations of various direct-to-consumer companies, are the brains behind this new company.

IBC Canada provides wannabe inventors with everything from consulting, to securing product patents, to industrial engineering, to web development. "We take you all the way to the napkin stage. We help people protect their ideas first and foremost," Harrington said at a cocktail reception Wednesday evening to celebrate IBC Canada's launch.

"Then we get into the product development phase, the engineering and the drawings and the graphics, and then the manufacturing, then the infomercial stage, and we do global distribution."

If you've had an idea simmering but didn't know how to take it to the next level, IBC Canada may be your ticket to success.

Go to www.inventors-bc.ca and submit your idea. If the team at IBC Canada feels it has merit, you'll be contacted.

Just a word of warning: As on Dragon's Den and Shark Tank, more ideas are rejected than accepted.

WIND Ontario's chief medical officer of health says there's no evidence that the noise from wind turbines leads to adverse health effects. Dr. Arlene King says some people living near turbines may report symptoms such as headaches, dizziness and sleep disturbances. But she concludes in a new report that the noise at common residential setbacks isn't sufficient to cause hearing impairment or other health effects. Residents from across the province had been lobbying the government to impose a moratorium on new wind projects until the possible impacts on human health were studied. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Man killed by train wore headphones: Investigators

DEATH A man walking along a set of North York train tracks was run over and killed by a freight train Thursday morning.

The 40-year-old victim was wearing headphones and likely didn't hear the train's horn, police said.

The man was walking south on the Canadian Pacific rails near Finch Avenue West and Weston Road around 7:30 a.m. when he was hit by the southbound train, said traffic Sgt. Tim Burrows.

"The train was travelling about 35 miles per hour at impact," he said. "From the point where it hit him to the point where the train finally stopped was about a kilometre."

Burrows said the train sounded its horn for 20 seconds to warn the man. The emergency brake system was also initiated.

But "he was wearing big headphones — the ones that go over your ears," and was unable to get out of the train's path.

PM makes top leadership donor a Senator

Stephen Harper has appointed the single biggest donor from his 2004 Conservative party leadership campaign to a $132,000 a year Senate seat.

Sports tycoon David Braley — whose political donations to Harper, his party and other Conservatives total $99,000 over the last six years — is the latest Tory partisan punted into Parliament's upper chamber.

The businessman from Hamilton owns the B.C. Lions and the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. He replaces

David Braley

Conservative senator Wilbert Keon, who has reached the mandatory Senate retirement age of 75.

The biography supplied by the Prime Minister's Office lists Braley's many philanthropic contributions, including $5 million for McMaster University, but not his Conservative donations.

Records unearthed by Liberal researchers show Braley personally donated $16,500 to Harper's 2004 leadership campaign, and his company, Orlick Industries, donated another $30,000. That made him Harper's single biggest supporter.

Orlick also contributed $30,000 to then-Conservative leadership hopeful Belinda Stronach and $10,000 to Tony Clement, although Braley did not personally support either candidate.

Harper, who came to office saying he would never appoint senators but wanted them elected, has now appointed 33 Conservatives to the 105-seat upper House in the 18 months.

Metro Inc. adopts sustainable fish policy

SEAFOOD Supermarket chain Metro Inc. has adopted a new sustainable fisheries policy that will gradually eliminate the sale of threatened species beginning in September.

The Montreal-based operator of Metro, Food Basics and Super C stores in Quebec and Ontario said the new policy affecting fresh and frozen wild and farmed seafood products will be totally in effect by June 2011.

"Metro acknowledges that sustainable fisheries and the preservation of natural resources are vital for future generations," said Robert Sawyer, chief operating officer.

In addition to eliminating the sale of some fish, the company will change its product labelling.

Metro is last among all Canadian supermarkets on environmental group Greenpeace's annual seafood list, which is slated to be released June 2.

Metro follows similar moves made in Canada by Walmart, Loblaw, Sobey's and B.C.-based Overwaitea.

Motorcyclist critical after bike flies off ramp

AIRBORNE A motorcycle rider is in hospital with life-threatening injuries after his machine hit a ramp barrier, flew through the air and went down an embankment.

Provincial police say it happened Thursday morning on the ramp to Highway 427 from the QEW in west Toronto.

The rider and motorcycle went airborne over the barrier, then travelled down the embankment to a grassy area below.

The 35-year-old man from Caledonia, Ont., was taken by air ambulance to Sunnybrook Hospital.

'Prince of Pot' extradited to U.S.

MARIJUANA After a years-long battle to avoid extradition, Canada's so-called Prince of Pot was brought Thursday to Seattle, where he is expected to plead guilty to a charge that he sold millions of marijuana seeds to U.S. customers.

Marc Emery

Marc Emery, wearing a V-neck sweater over a collared shirt, appeared in U.S. District Court and agreed to remain in custody pending his plea hearing Monday. Canada's justice minister signed off on Emery's extradition to the United States May 10.

Emery, 52, of Vancouver, claimed to have made $3 million a year before his arrest in 2005, when a grand jury in Seattle indicted him on marijuana conspiracy and money laundering charges. He operated his mail-order business for about a decade.

His attorney, Richard Troberman, said Emery will plead guilty to one count of conspiracy to manufacture marijuana in exchange for an agreed sentence of five years in prison.

To drug officials, Emery was a pariah whose pot seeds were used in illegal marijuana grow-ops across the United States. The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration said his seeds have been traced to grow operations in Indiana, Florida, California, Tennessee, Montana, Virginia, Michigan, New Jersey and North Dakota.

News in brief

POWER OUTAGE B.C. Hydro crews worked into the early hours of Thursday morning to restore electricity to thousands of Metro Vancouver residents affected by a powerful wind and rain storm. Strong gusts hit Wednesday afternoon and the storm continued through the night, toppling trees and knocking down power lines. More than 40,000 B.C. residents spent the night in the dark, but B.C. Hydro expected to have power restored by the end of the day.

SEIZURE An Ottawa Liberal wants Ontario to give municipalities the power to seize property for 90 days even if there is not enough evidence to lay criminal charges against the owners or tenants. Yasir Naqvi says versions of the Safer Communities and Neighbourhoods Act already exist in other provinces and territories, and the goal is to make sure the landlords are accountable for how their properties are being used.

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Environment Minister Jim Prentice has dismissed the findings of a new report that puts Canada near the bottom of G8 countries on its low-carbon performance index.

Enviro-laggards?

Canada sixth of G8 nations, new report says

A report by a top advisory panel ranks Canada near the bottom of G8 countries when it comes to climate change and the economy, but Environment Minister Jim Prentice is dismissing the results.

The National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy places Canada sixth among G8 nations in its new low-carbon performance index.

However, Prentice says the rankings provided by the federally appointed think-tank are flawed.

"I'm not happy with the report," he said.

"And I've instructed my staff to schedule a meeting with the round table to discuss my concerns about the methodology that's been arrived at in this report."

He said the report "ignores" recent progress Canada has made, citing an international commitment signed in Copenhagen last December, new North American standards for tailpipe emissions, and ethanol content requirements in gasoline and diesel.

France, Germany and Britain placed highest overall, followed by Japan and the U.S. Canada finished ahead of Italy and Russia.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

What the report looked at

- The round table's index assesses five key categories and 15 indicators. The categories are emissions and energy, innovation, investment, skills, and policy and institutions.
- It measures, among other things, a country's level of clean-technology investment, low-carbon financial stimulus and national carbon-pricing measures.
- Essentially, the report measures how a country's economy functions at low levels of greenhouse gas emissions per unit of gross domestic product.

Canadians OK with foreign ownership, new poll says

TELECOM A new poll suggests the Harper government is on safe and even popular ground in wanting to open the domestic telecom industry to foreign ownership.

In fact, by a narrow margin, the poll suggests Canadians think foreign investment is generally a good thing. In the sensitive telecom sector, tolerance for foreign ownership appears to be even stronger.

Most respondents said an unregulated Internet is good for Canadian artists because it gives them greater exposure globally.

The Harris-Decima survey, conducted in late April, found 63 per cent of the 1,003 Canadians surveyed supported more global investment into Canada's telecommunications sector. A similar number said it would result in more jobs for Canadians and 78 per cent said greater foreign participation would provide more consumer choice. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Iran, North Korea highlight G8 focus

Canada to take Asian country to task for sinking South Korean warship: Official

The rising tensions with North Korea and Iran have injected a new urgency into Canada's G8 security agenda, which faced being overshadowed by economic recovery talks at next month's round of summits.

The Harper government said it would use its G8 presidency to take North Korea to task for the March 26 sinking of a South Korean warship, a senior government official said Thursday.

An international civilian-military investigation concluded that a North Korean torpedo sank the Cheonan, a South Korean corvette, killing 46 sailors in the region's worst military disaster since the Korean War.

Cannon

North Korea raised the spectre of "all-out war" in response to international condemnation — including Canada's — ratcheting tensions to new levels in the Korean Peninsula.

While Foreign Affairs Minister Lawrence Cannon also blasted North Korea, he made clear that Iran's nuclear ambitions posed a more serious threat to global peace.

"If it is not contained, Iran's nuclear program runs the risk of leading to a nuclear arms race in the Middle East and seriously undermining the international non-proliferation regime," Cannon said Thursday.

"That situation could very quickly become the most serious crisis, and the most dangerous crisis facing our generation."

Cannon offered that assessment in a speech to the Montreal Council on Foreign Relations that refocused attention on the daunting security agenda that awaits G8 leaders when they meet in Huntsville next month. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Plan to pay the piper is G20 target

STRATEGY G20 countries are being asked to sign on to an economic recovery plan that would require 20 years of austerity, cost-cutting and higher taxes, The Canadian Press has learned.

Sources say the International Monetary Fund has finally responded to a major request by the G20 and crafted a strategy that would put the world on a stable fiscal footing.

The IMF has recently given G20 governments two key papers: An "assessment" that exposes the folly of countries going off in all directions without co-ordinating their recoveries; and a "strategy" on fiscal consolidation that maps how rich countries should rein in their ballooning debt. Summit

- Agreement on the submitted plan is at the heart of G20 negotiations at the summit in Toronto in five weeks.

Two more teens charged in damage to Ottawa tombstones

CEMETERY Ottawa police have charged two more suspects after 39 tombstones were knocked over and damaged.

Police say it happened overnight between April 30 and May 1 at the Notre Dame Cemetery.

James Wills, 19, and Dominic Desrochers, 18, both of Ottawa, are each charged with mischief under $5,000 and interfering with a dead body or human remains, which police say can include damaging monuments or tombstones.

The two suspects have been released and are due in court June 9.

Police had previously charged Jordan Hunter, 19, of Ottawa with the same offences, and he has the same court date. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Better late than never

Quebec's Charest finally gives up his bonus

After years of pressure, Quebec Premier Jean Charest has agreed to renounce his controversial $75,000-a-year bonus salary.

That stipend has been paid to him by the Quebec Liberal party since he entered provincial politics in 1998.

Charest — who already earns a base salary of almost $183,000 as premier — said he's willing to drop the bonus in order to get the opposition to fast-track his ethics legislation. He wants it passed before summer break.

Jean Charest

A series of ethics controversies have swirled around his government, including persistent questions about his own secondary source of income.

"I think it's important that we get a code of ethics and I think it's very important that we do whatever we need to do to make that happen," Charest told reporters Thursday.

"I never had any second thoughts about receiving a salary. I always thought it was very legitimate.

"If this is an obstacle to adopting the code of ethics, then I'm ready to do what I need to do to move this obstacle aside."

Parti Québécois House leader Stephane Bedard said: "The premier woke up late — but better late than never."

It's over — or is it? An emotional René Lévesque acknowledges the referendum's failure in 1980.

Will topic ever go away?

QUEBEC It has been three decades since Quebec first held a vote on independence, and although the cause appears no closer to becoming a reality today Premier Jean Charest isn't declaring victory.

The pro-Canada premier went out of his way to avoid sounding triumphalist Thursday — the 30th anniversary of the first sovereignty referendum on May 20, 1980.

Charest says things have changed a lot in Canada since then. But he wouldn't rule out the possibility of a future referendum.

"I'm not of that school of thought that would make predictions — but I know this issue will always be around," Charest said.

"I know this issue will always be around."
Jean Charest

"I think it's important to respect those who defend that choice. It's not the choice I defend."

In 1980, then-premier René Lévesque saw his sovereigntist forces beaten by a roughly 60-40 margin in the first effort to take Quebec out of Canada.

His voice choking with emotion, he told supporters to wait until next time.

The next time came several years later, in 1995, after Lévesque's death. Sovereigntists led by Jacques Parizeau and Lucien Bouchard were defeated again, but this time by a razor-thin margin.

Support for sovereignty has generally hovered around the 40 per cent mark in the last 30 years and has been moved to the back burner by the Parti Québécois, who are now the official opposition in the provincial legislature.

News in brief

TRIAL The B.C. premier's chief of staff denies knowing that a former government official on trial for fraud and breach of trust phoned radio talk shows to lob "softball questions" at Gordon Campbell around the controversial sale of B.C. Rail. Martyn Brown said he never directed Dave Basi to make such calls in 2003. He said he had no knowledge about whether former finance minister Gary Collins had any discussions with his aide Basi about phoning talk shows. Brown told B.C. Supreme Court he would be shocked if the premier frequently called Basi's co-accused, Bobby Virk, to assure him the government would take care of him following a raid on the legislature. The December 2003 raid eventually led to corruption charges against Basi and Virk.

ATV blamed for Alberta brush fire

DRY WEATHER An investigation has determined an all-terrain vehicle probably caused a brush fire in Alberta that destroyed a home and forced an evacuation order.

An official says he's disappointed the driver wasn't careful when riding near Opal, about 60 kilometres north of Edmonton.

"I'm very disappointed people ignored the dry weather conditions and caused a major wildfire that resulted in the loss of a family's home and other properties, forced many people to evacuate and cost millions of dollars to control and extinguish," said Thorhild County Reeve Charles Newell.

Rogue ships are masters of disguise

The rogue fishing boats are winning.

A new study suggests measures to curb illegal fishing around the world are doing little to crack down on a lucrative practice scientists say is gutting already depleted stocks.

The research finds that sanctions against vessels known for illegal fishing are not widely enforced.

Researcher Kristin von Kistowski says tracking rogue ships is difficult and there is no centralized list of vessels that flout fisheries regulations.

"The current system leaves significant loopholes that those who are engaged in (illegal) fishing can exploit," von Kistowski said from Berlin.

Hide-and-seek

- Researchers tracked port visits of vessels on lists of ships deemed to be involved in illegal fishing.
- They found port visits could be tracked for only one-third of the vessels, suggesting many disguise their identities.
- Fishing vessels aren't required to have a single, unique identifier under the International Maritime Organization, which could help track them.

"To fix the worldwide problem, we need a system with greater transparency, accountability and global co-ordination."

Election ruling backfires on Tories

EXPENSES A court ruling initially hailed by the Tories contains a bitter pill that could poison the electoral prospects of three cabinet ministers.

Last January, a Federal Court judge rejected Elections Canada's claim that Tory candidate advertising expenses during the 2006 federal election should have been reported as national campaign expenses.

The Tories claimed "total vindication" at the time, but they have now launched an appeal.

The Conservatives are hoping to strike down a little-noticed part of the ruling that means up to 10 Tory candidates exceeded their spending limits.

The 10 include Foreign Affairs Minister Lawrence Cannon, Natural Resources Minister Christian Paradis and Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Josee Verner.

If the ruling is allowed to stand, the ministers could be charged and — if convicted — barred from seeking re-election or even sitting in the House of Commons. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rossi's bike plan stuck in a rut

UrbanCompass

The weather's bad. I'm hauling too much stuff. The tires need air. I haven't cycled to work yet this spring and these are some of my excuses.

The real reason, however, is that I haven't mustered the courage to venture onto the streets and pathetically inadequate bike lanes for another season.

In between fretting, I have been pondering mayoral candidate Rocco Rossi's proposal to confine bike lanes to secondary routes rather than installing them on arterials such as Bloor Street.

Rossi envisions bike lanes along routes such as Sherbourne, Beverley and St. George streets in the downtown, and Mortimer and Lumsden avenues, parallel to the Danforth.

"It's a question of trying to come up with a solution that takes into account that the vast majority of people who are getting to work and are taking their kids to hockey (and other activities) are using cars versus bikes," he says. "To say in the city that cars are bad and therefore I'm going to make it exceptionally difficult for people to go about their everyday lives, I don't agree with that ... All I'm suggesting is we need a balance."

Let's take a look at Rossi's notion of balance. First, his plan does not envision lanes that physically separate cyclists from cars and pedestrians.

"If we're using the safer secondary streets, I don't see as big a case (for protected bike lanes)," he said in an interview. Maybe it's just my chicken-hearted nature, but I don't feel particularly safe on secondary streets.

Livable cities advocate Gil Penalosa challenges other aspects of Rossi's scheme. Cyclists, like pedestrians, want to travel the shortest distance and that's usually via arterials, he observes, noting that similar initiatives failed in Portland and Copenhagen. What's more, he adds, people on $30 bikes should have access to the same thoroughfares as the drivers of big, noisy, polluting vehicles worth $30,000.

The biggest problem, however, is that Rossi's proposal is an argument for the status quo. His plan for financing the construction of new subway infrastructure to lure motorists out of their cars has more holes in it than a kitchen colander and will lead to major delays in transit expansion. Under a Rossi administration, bike lanes will still consist of pathetically inadequate painted lines on still-busy streets. And the automobile will still reign unchecked and supreme.

There may be reasons to vote for Rossi. His bike plan isn't one of them.

'Newton' given cosmic view of Earth

Sir Isaac Newton is getting the royal treatment in space, thanks to the British-born astronaut who carried up a picture of the 17th-century scientist and a chip from his famous apple tree.

Atlantis astronaut Piers Sellers said Thursday that he placed Newton's picture in the glassed-in dome of the International Space Station — the best seat in the gravity-less house. The views of Earth are stupendous from there.

"Sir Isaac absolutely loved it, I've got to tell you," Sellers said in an interview with The Associated Press. "We had him in the window, and he got to watch his little wood chip float by and ponder the laws of gravitation and everything, so I think it was a treat for him."

The Royal Society of London provided Sellers with the 10-centimetre sliver of wood, which he took with him into orbit aboard the shuttle. It's inscribed with Newton's initials and, according to the society, came from the actual tree in England from which an apple fell nearly 350 years ago and inspired Newton to discover the law of gravity.

Sellers said Wednesday's ceremony was a dry run. He plans to videotape the Newton items later this week for the Royal Society, which is the national academy of science of the United Kingdom. It's celebrating its 350th anniversary.

Newton was a physicist, mathematician and astronomer. His brush with the falling apple is believed to have occurred in the mid-1660s.

Sellers, now a U.S. citizen, and the rest of Atlantis' visiting astronauts got some time off Thursday after nearly a week of stressful work in orbit.

The day's big event was the grand opening of the space station's newest room.

The Russian compartment, named Rassvet, or Dawn, was installed by the Atlantis crew earlier this week.

Alarm broken where art was stolen

A thief stole five paintings valued at more than $100 million US, including major works by Picasso, Matisse and Modigliani, left, in an overnight heist Thursday at a Paris modern art museum with a broken alarm system, officials said. The paintings disappeared early Thursday from the Paris Museum of Modern Art, across the Seine River from the Eiffel Tower in one of the French capital's most chic and tourist-frequented neighbourhoods. The museum's alarm system had been broken since March 30 in some rooms. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BP says spill worse than thought

GULF OF MEXICO BP conceded Thursday that more oil than it estimated is gushing into the Gulf of Mexico as heavy crude washed into Louisiana's wetlands for the first time, feeding worries and uncertainty about the massive monthlong spill.

Mark Proegler, a spokesman for oil giant BP PLC, told The Associated Press that a mile-long tube inserted into a leaking pipe over the weekend is capturing 210,000 gallons a day — the total amount the company and the U.S. Coast Guard have estimated is gushing into the sea — but some is still escaping. He would not say how much.

Several professors who have watched video of the leak have said they believe the amount spewing out is much higher than official estimates.

Proegler said the 210,000 gallons — 5,000 barrels — has always been just an estimate because there is no way to measure how much is spilling from the seafloor.

A live video feed of the leak posted online Thursday at the insistence of lawmakers shows what appears to be a large plume of oil and gas still spewing next to the tube that's carrying some of it to the surface.

"What you see are real-time images of a real-world disaster unfolding 5,000 feet below the surface of the Gulf," said U.S. Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass. "These videos stand as a scalding, blistering indictment of BP's inattention to the scope and size of the greatest environmental catastrophe in the history of the United States."

Thai government mops up

Experts warn of long-term strife as Red Shirt protesters vow return

As soldiers mopped up pockets of resistance and the government declared it was back in control, fears grew Thursday that the tentative quiet restored to Thailand's capital after a bloody crackdown on protests may just be a respite from violence and political polarization that could continue for years.

Leaders of the anti-government Red Shirt movement vowed a return as they were taken into custody.

"I think this is a new beginning for the Red Shirts," said Kevin Hewison, a Thailand expert at the University of North Carolina. "It will be a darker and grimmer time of struggle and less-focused activities. By no stretch of the imagination is the movement finished."

A monk walks past a police officer Thursday after taking refuge at a temple following Wednesday's crackdown against anti-government protesters in Bangkok.

The Thai government declared Thursday it had mostly quelled 10 weeks of violent protests in the capital as buildings smouldered, troops rooted out die-hard holdouts and some residents cautiously attempted a return to normal life a day after a military operation cleared the main commercial district of thousands of demonstrators, leaving 15 dead and nearly 100 injured.

Troops roamed the city on foot and in Humvees and exchanged gunfire with scattered Red Shirt holdouts, who fought near the city's Victory Monument and torched a bank, bringing to 40 the number of buildings set aflame after the military push sent the protesters retreating from their demonstration site.

The protesters, demanding elections, had fortified themselves behind tire-and-bamboo-spike barricades.

Thailand's finance ministry estimated the economic damage to the country at $1.5 billion US. Continued security concerns led officials to extend a nighttime curfew in Bangkok and 23 other provinces for three more days. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

News in brief

SOMALIA After years of wreaking havoc on the open ocean, Somali pirates are being squeezed on land and sea by authorities and a militant group looking to put them out of business. Security forces in northern Somalia arrested a prominent pirate on a U.S. government watchlist during a raid against 12 pirates, an official said Thursday. The raid in the northern region of Puntland is another worry for pirates, who already face arrest by international warships off the coast of East Africa. The Horn of Africa nation has been mired in anarchy since 1991.

AMSTERDAM The Netherlands has launched a special driving exam for people who suffer from acute test anxiety. Examiners try to put test-takers at ease. The exam pace is leisurely, and drivers are allowed to take a "time out" if the pressure becomes too much for them.

New from Japan: Stink-free underwear

DANIELLE DEMETRIOU
Metro World News

TOKYO Forget doing the laundry. A futuristic range of pillowcases and underwear that do not require washing has gone on sale in Japan.

The bedding and clothing are made from a high-tech fabric imbued with antibacterial agents that are scientifically proven to absorb unsavoury smells caused by not washing or aging.

The products were created using sci-fi style space technology following collaboration between the Japanese clothing company Goldwin and the Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency.

The futuristic new pillow cover, which costs about $24, reportedly eliminates 92 per cent of perspiration smells and 82 per cent of odours associated with aging, according to Goldwin.

Other products in the range include its J-Space Underpants, costing around $125, manufactured from the same bacteria-killing and smell-reducing fabric.

"This is the only fabric which can eliminate all kinds of sweat smells and nonenal (a substance associated with aging)," a Goldwin spokesman said. "Its functions last even after washing it repeatedly."

Cuban lawmakers decry Arizona immigration law

More protests over Greek measures

ATHENS More than 20,000 protesters marched through Athens to parliament Thursday as unions challenged Greece's harsh austerity measures with their fourth general strike this year — and the first since three people died when a bank was torched.

The rally ended peacefully, but city officials and shopkeepers had taken extensive precautions in case the protest turned violent, like the one two weeks ago.

Store owners closed up and lowered protective shutters before the march got underway. Police deployed 1,700 officers and detained 36 people in an early show of force.

Demonstrators outside the parliament building banged pots and pans and shouted "Thieves, thieves!" but riot police held them back. The strike closed schools, halted ferries and trains, and kept hospitals running with only emergency staff. The Acropolis and other ancient sites in Athens were also shut.

ELIZA GIANNOULIA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Riot police officers try to move people away from a sit-down protest Thursday in Athens.

Premier George Papandreou, visiting Lebanon, said he sympathized with many of the protesters.

"The Greek people are understandably voicing their views about the economic crisis, and it is painful," Papandreou said.

"We understand this and I understand this myself. We also know that we must move ahead with these changes in order to make the country with a viable economy, a competitive economy."

News in brief

WASHINGTON Mexican President Felipe Calderon took his opposition to a new immigration law in border state Arizona to U.S. Congress Thursday, saying it "ignores a reality that cannot be erased by decree." North Korea denies sinking submarine

North Korea, accused of waging the deadliest attack on the South Korean military since the Korean War, flatly denied sinking a warship Thursday and warned that retaliation would mean "all-out war."

"If (South Korea) tries to deal any retaliation or punishment ... we will answer to this with all-out war."
North Korean naval spokesman Col. Pak In Ho

Evidence presented Thursday to prove North Korea fired a torpedo that sank a South Korean ship was fabricated by Seoul, North Korean naval spokesman Col. Pak In Ho told broadcaster APTN in an exclusive interview in Pyongyang.

He warned that any move to sanction or strike North Korea would be met with force.

"If (South Korea) tries to deal any retaliation or punishment, or if they try sanctions or a strike on us .... we will answer to this with all-out war," he told APTN.

An international team of civilian and military investigators declared earlier in Seoul that a North Korean submarine fired a homing torpedo at the Cheonan on March 26, ripping the 1,200-ton ship in two.

Fifty-eight sailors were rescued, but 46 died — South Korea's worst military disaster since a truce ended the three-year Korean War in 1953.

President Lee Myung-bak vowed to take "resolute countermeasures" and called an emergency security meeting for Friday.

The White House called the sinking an unacceptable "act of aggression" that violated international law and the 1953 truce.

Japanese Prime Minister Yukio Hatoyama declared his support for South Korea, calling North Korea's actions "inexcusable." However, South Korea's options for retaliation are limited.

The armistice prevents Seoul from waging a unilateral military attack, and South Korea would not risk any retaliation that could lead to war, said North Korea expert Yoo Ho-yeol at Korea University in Seoul.

"That could lead to a completely uncontrollable situation," he said, noting that Seoul and its 10 million residents are within striking range of North Korea's forward-deployed artillery.

South Korea and the U.S., which has 28,500 troops on the peninsula, could hold another round of joint military exercises in a show of force, said Daniel Pinkston, a Seoul-based analyst for the International Crisis Group think-tank.

Loyalty Can Be Costly

Shopping Around Still The Key To Saving On Car Insurance

How Much Is Your Loyalty Discount Really Worth?

If you're like most consumers, you worry that switching insurance companies means losing your "loyalty discount". The truth is that switching insurance companies may cause you to lose your loyalty discount (if you had one in the first place), but that doesn't necessarily mean you'll pay more for car insurance or that you can't save a bundle in the end. The fact is, some insurance companies may provide a small discount on your premium if you've been with them for a long time – but that small discount can quickly become irrelevant if another company has a rate for you that is significantly less than what you're currently paying. After all, what good is 5% off of an annual rate of $1,500 (a $75 savings) if you could pay $1,100 (a $400 savings) with another company?

How Much Do Rates Really Differ Across Companies?

The rates charged by different insurance companies to insure the same driver, with the same car, for the same coverage, can vary by hundreds and even thousands of dollars. And with so many insurance companies providing car insurance in Ontario, odds are you are not currently insured with the company that offers the best rate for your driving profile. This is where InsuranceHotline.com can help by providing an independent, unbiased rate comparison from over 30 top insurance companies to find you the lowest rate available for your profile. Even better, once your lowest rate is found, InsuranceHotline.com can connect you with a licensed insurance broker or agent to seal the deal. It's Fast, Safe and FREE.

Don't Be Fooled By Others Offering To "Compare Quotes"

Unlike most of its competitors, InsuranceHotline.com does not sell insurance, is not a licensed broker or agent, and is not owned in whole or in part by an insurance company. This allows InsuranceHotline.com to be completely unbiased when providing insurance quotes and keeps its focus solely on finding the lowest insurance rates for consumers. By contrast, most websites offering to "compare insurance quotes" are owned by or affiliated with insurance brokers or agents and are therefore only capable of quoting rates from the limited number of insurance companies they represent, typically no more than 4 or 5.

Rate Comparison

Driving Record	Lowest Price	Highest Price	Savings
Clean Record	$958	$2,213	$1,255
1 Ticket	$1,018	$2,552	$1,534
1 Accident	$1,849	$3,753	$1,904

Pakistan bans YouTube

The Pakistani government blocked access to YouTube Thursday because of "sacrilegious" content in a growing Internet crackdown against sites deemed offensive to the country's majority Muslim population.

The move against the video-sharing website came a day after the government blocked access to Facebook amid anger over a page on the social networking site that encourages users to post images of Islam's Prophet Muhammad. Islam prohibits any images of the prophet.

The Pakistan Telecommunications Authority did not point to specific material on YouTube that prompted it to block the site, only citing "growing sacrilegious contents." The government acted against both Facebook and YouTube after it failed to persuade the websites to remove the "derogatory material," the regulatory body said in a statement.

The regulatory body said it has blocked more than 450 Internet links containing offensive material, but it is unclear how many of the links were blocked in the last two days.

Chinese participants in the waist drum tournament perform Thursday at Grand View Garden in Beijing, China. More than 1,500 waist drum fans from 50 teams gathered to compete for the Baizhifang Cup. Waist drum, also known as Yaogu in China, is a Chinese traditional musical instrument people perform, sometimes with group dancing, for festivals and celebrations.

Goodwill in the Mideast?

Israel considered goodwill gestures toward the Palestinians Thursday, as U.S. President Barack Obama's Mideast envoy wound up a second round of indirect Mideast peace talks.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Kurt Hoyer said envoy George Mitchell left after meeting Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu Thursday.

Hoyer gave no details of their talks, and there were no outward signs of progress.

A statement from Netanyahu's office said they discussed the possibility of gestures toward the Palestinians. No details were given. In the past, Israel has taken down some West Bank roadblocks as a sign of goodwill.

The statement said Israel expects that during the talks, the Palestinians will refrain from political activity against Israel, citing as an example the unsuccessful campaign to prevent Israel's acceptance into the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, a prestigious world economic body.

Canada can't escape effects of Greek crisis

If it's Europe that sneezes, why does Canada still catch a cold?

Canada's economy may be roaring now, but its longer-term prospects are being turned topsy-turvy by a localized credit crisis in Europe, economists say.

Evidence that the economy looks strong at the moment were bolstered yesterday with the release of two data points — leading indicators and employment insurance payouts — both consistent with a strong rebound.

The end-of-month gross domestic product release is also widely expected to show Canada enjoying an economic resurgence the rest of the industrialized world only dreams of, with the second consecutive quarter of five and five-plus percentage growth.

But markets hardly noticed. The attention was squarely fixated on Greece and other European problems Thursday as investors saw an increasingly risky future.

The Canadian dollar plunged more than two cents, oil fell below $70 US a barrel, and equity markets both in Toronto and New York lost about three per cent of their value.

The disconnect reminded economists of the Asian financial crisis of a dozen years ago, a far-away crisis that began in a systemically insignificant Thailand. Commodities fell and the loonie caught a downdraft that took it all the way down to the 62-cent level.

Analysts don't believe the Greek crisis and the contagion effect will be as dramatic this time, but they admit the assurances of a few weeks ago that North America needn't worry about little, broken Greece are ringing hollow now.

The Association of Ontario Land Surveyors is pleased to announce that

Zoltan Herman
O.L.S., O.L.I.P.
of Toronto, Ontario

Has successfully completed all of the academic and experience requirements for professional membership in the Association of Ontario Land Surveyors.

Mr. Herman received his Bachelor of Applied Science in Geomatics Engineering from York University. He then completed additional university courses required by the Association. His formal education was followed by a required term of closely monitored practical experience and by additional formal examinations in Statute Law and Professional Land Surveying.

Zoltan now joins the ranks of over 636 Ontario Land Surveyors/Ontario Land Information Professionals who are responsible for the creation, maintenance and recording of land boundaries and parcels in the Province of Ontario.

OLSs/OLIPs are also engaged in aerial photogrammetric mapping, hydrographic surveying of the beds of lakes and rivers, topographic surveying, geodetic surveying for precise determination of the shape of the Earth's surface and are involved in the development and maintenance of Geographic Information Systems (GIS) as Geographic Information Managers. For additional information, visit the AOLS website (www.aols.org).

Debts still rising steadily

FINANCE Getting out of debt appears to be more difficult than many Canadian homeowners imagine.

Only seven per cent of 1,000 respondents to a Canadian online survey last month said they had paid down their debt over the past year by more than expected.

Another 19 per cent said they had reduced their debt — but by less than anticipated.

In contrast, 27 per cent of the respondents said their debt had increased over the past year and 17 per cent saw no change.

The survey was conducted April 16-23 for Manulife Bank, a subsidiary of Manulife Financial Corp.

The report focused on what could be described as middle-income, middle-aged homeowners — people aged 30 to 55 with at least $50,000 of household income.

About one-third of those surveyed ranked being debt-free as their top financial priority

Route1 boosts revenue

TECH Technology specialist Route1 Inc. says it reduced the company's first-quarter losses to $280,627 while revenues moved higher.

The Toronto-based security technology specialist said yesterday the loss was worth less than one cent per share, compared to a loss of $944,058 or nil per share a year earlier.

Revenues rose 129 per cent to $1 million from $438,519.

"As a result of the team's efforts, I expect Route1 to continue to demonstrate an improved and growing bottom line throughout the remainder of 2010," president and CEO Tony Busseri said in a release.

Summer gas forecast

Gasoline prices will be slightly higher this summer than they were last year, but it's not likely motorists will be caught off guard by sudden spikes at the pump, the National Energy Board predicted yesterday.

Retail gas prices should average between 95 cents $1.10 per litre during the summer months, the federal energy regulator said as consumers prepare for the May long weekend — the unofficial start to the summer driving season.

The NEB said gasoline prices probably won't deviate too much from where the average sits currently — about $1.02 per litre Thursday, according to prices across Canada compiled by website Gasbuddy.com.

On the whole, prices should remain steady since global supplies are plentiful, said Jesus Rios, an oil analyst with the NEB. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sports in brief

NBA Mark Cuban is no stranger to bold statements, and the Dallas Mavericks owner has expressed his interest in acquiring soon-to-be free agent LeBron James. The outspoken billionaire, in an interview this week with CNNMoney.com, said "anybody" would be interested in James.

NFL Washington Redskins coach Mike Shanahan is taking a "wait-and-see" approach to reports receiver Santana Moss is linked to a Toronto doctor charged with smuggling and supplying human growth hormone. Shanahan said Thursday he will speak to Moss "at the right time" about the matter and not been contacted by the league.

NBA A person familiar with the decision says the Philadelphia 76ers have agreed to terms with TNT analyst Doug Collins to become their new coach. The person spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the announcement has not been made public.

Montreal Canadiens Jaroslav Spacek, from right, Tom Pyatt, and Roman Hamrlik celebrate Dominic Moore's second-period goal against the Philadelphia Flyers Thursday in Montreal.

Montreal's third line shone as Pyatt and Dominic Moore both scored and Maxim Lapierre had an assist, and the Canadiens served notice they won't fade away meekly after series-opening losses of 6-0 and 3-0 in Philadelphia.

Brian Gionta and Marc-Andre Bergeron also scored as the Canadiens ended the Flyers' six-game winning streak and handed Leighton his first loss in five post-season starts.

Simon Gagne broke Jaroslav Halak's shutout bid in the third period with his seventh goal in as many games since returning from a toe injury. Montreal outshot Philadelphia 38-26.

The Flyers lead the best-of-seven series 2-1 with Game 4 set for Saturday afternoon at the Bell Centre.

Leighton saw his shutout run end when Cammalleri scored his 13th of the playoffs at 7:05 of the first period.

His shutout streak covered 172:55, second-longest in Flyers history behind Brian Boucher's 184:45 in 2000. He had stopped 74 consecutive shots dating to a Milan Lucic goal in the first period of Game 7 of the last round against Boston.

Russians knock Canadians out of contention

IIHF

Russia 5 Canada 2

HOCKEY A forgettable IIHF World Hockey Championship for Canada ended with a crushing 5-2 quarter-final loss to Russia Thursday.

It's the third straight year Russia ended Canada's gold-medal hopes at the tournament and this loss came a long way from the final. A young Canadian squad dropped four of its final five games and failed to get past the quarter-finals for the first time since 2002.

"You want to win and it's disappointing when you don't," said forward Steven Stamkos. "It's a bitter taste."

The Canadians entered as heavy underdogs to a powerhouse Russian team that featured 14 players who competed at the Vancouver Olympics. Corey Perry was the lone gold-medal winner from those Games to make the trip to Germany for Canada.

Evgeni Malkin, with two, Maxim Afinogenov, Pavel Datsyuk and Sergei Fedorov — all Olympians — scored goals for Russia (7-0), which extended its world championship winning streak to 26 games.

John Tavares and Matt Duchene replied for Canada (3-4).

Despite the gap in skill and experience, the hard-fought game wasn't as lopsided as the score suggested. "I don't think it was an easy game for anybody," said Fedorov.

Griffey hit gives M's win over Blue Jays

MLB RESULTS

Blue Jays 3 Mariners 4

MLB Ken Griffey Jr. awakened the slumping Mariners with a game-winning, pinch-hit single to cap Seattle's three-run rally off AL saves leader Kevin Gregg in the ninth with a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Thursday.

Seattle snapped a five-game skid and Griffey's teammates mobbed him between first and second base. Nine days ago the Mariners rallied to his defence following a report he was unavailable to pinch-hit in an earlier loss because he was sleeping in the clubhouse.

Ichiro Suzuki and Mike Sweeney gave him big, extended hugs in the dugout.

It was the 10th game-ending hit of the 40-year-old Griffey's career.

Gregg (0-1) had 12 saves in 13 chances before he allowed singles to Mike Sweeney and Jose Lopez then walked Milton Bradley to begin the ninth. Then he walked Casey Kotchman on a full-count pitch to make it 3-2.

Josh Bard tied the game with a sacrifice fly that scored Lopez before Griffey emerged, to the delight of 20,452 roaring fans.

The part-timer lined a 2-1 pitch into right field that scored Bradley easily from second base.

Happy ending to a broken heart

The story was buried in the sports pages. Zac Herold, a 17-year-old professional soccer prospect, was forced to end his dream because of a heart condition that threatens his life if he continues to compete.

A doctor with Toronto FC discovered Herold's plight after the native of Port St. Lucie, Fla., reported to training camp as a top draft pick. The diagnosis means a future on the sidelines … but a future, nonetheless.

Maybe it's a hopeful sign that somewhere out there, someone is watching over athletes and protecting them from the damage sport can do.

Encouraging news like this is rare in times when players are treated as commodities instead of human beings.

Herold's situation is overshadowed by a litany of malpractice that occurs daily in high performance athletics — professional and amateur. The act of enjoying sport has frequently been replaced by a win-at-all-costs mentality.

The sports pages are frequently filled with bad news: We read of a notorious junior hockey coach who repeatedly sexually assaulted his players and ruined their lives.

We are stunned by the beating of a minor soccer parent in Edmonton at the hands of a player from the opposing team. The attack was apparently motivated by racial tensions.

Some of us are conflicted when learning of the death of a talented track and field mentor who advised his runners to take steroids so they wouldn't be left behind. Others are appalled that a Toronto sports doctor allegedly prescribed human growth hormone to NFL players.

Many more are concerned that young athletes in various team sports are being pressured to play despite concussions, which have become epidemic.

Herold's career has been cut short, but his situation should enlighten us.

Thank heavens someone is watching over him — a supportive family, a wise physician and a professional club that has things in perspective.

When Toronto FC honours Herold at BMO Field Saturday, they'll be making a statement.

Sport is not nearly as precious as life.

And sometimes, happy endings can be found in broken hearts.

Scott Russell is the Host of CBC Sports Weekend seen Saturday afternoons.

Armstrong denies Landis' accusations

CYCLING Disgraced U.S. cyclist Floyd Landis revealed new cheating allegations in a series of messages to sponsors and officials, alleging that former teammate Lance Armstrong not only joined him in doping but taught others how to beat the system and paid an official to keep a failed test quiet.

With international cycling season in full swing, Landis admitted for the first time what had long been suspected — he was guilty of doping for several years before being stripped of his 2006 Tour de France title.

His fresh accusations, contained in emails sent last month, prompted Armstrong to hold an impromptu press conference Thursday at the Tour of California.

"If you said, 'Give me one word to sum this all up — credibility,'" the seven-time Tour de France winner said. "Floyd lost his credibility a long time ago.

"We have nothing to hide. We have nothing to run from," said Armstrong, who later quit the race to go to a hospital for X-rays after crashing just outside of Visalia, Calif. Team spokesman Philippe Maertens told The Associated Press that Armstrong got stitches in the left elbow and under the left eye.

MARCIO JOSE SANCHEZ/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cyclist Lance Armstrong bleeds from a cut under his eye after crashing Thursday during the Tour of California in the outskirts of Visalia, Calif.

Though Landis lost his title, he denied cheating until now, and his recent emails detail his blood doping.

"I want to clear my conscience," Landis told ESPN.com. "I don't want to be part of the problem any more."

He claims Armstrong and longtime coach Johan Bruyneel paid an International Cycling Union official to cover up a test in 2002 after Armstrong purportedly tested positive for the blood-boosting drug EPO. The UCI, however, denied changing or concealing a positive test result.

In an email Landis sent to USA Cycling chief Steve Johnson, he said Armstrong's positive EPO test was in 2002, around the time he won the Tour de Suisse. Armstrong won the Tour de Suisse in 2001 and did not compete in 2002.

"We're a little confused, maybe just as confused as you guys," Armstrong said, with Bruyneel by his side. "The timeline is off, year by year."

The Wall Street Journal first reported the details of the emails.

Man U boss plans reunion with T.O. kin

SOCCER It will be a family reunion for manager Sir Alex Ferguson this summer when he brings Manchester United to Canada.

The Red Devils toured the U.S. in 2003 and 2004, but are adding Toronto to their North American itinerary this year.

"It's new in terms of a game, yes, but I know Toronto. I've got a lot of family there," Ferguson told The Canadian Press Thursday.

"My dad's family moved there in 1959. I've got nine direct cousins. I've got about 40 second cousins. I've got an aunt still alive, and my grandmother died there. She's buried in Toronto. I've got an uncle buried there.

"My great-aunt, who was very close to me, she died last year there. So we've got a big family connection."

The United boss plans a family get-together in Toronto the day before his team plays Glasgow Celtic at Rogers Centre July 16.

Jessica Parker weighs in on joys of best friends forever

It often takes a vacation to gain a little perspective on everyday problems.

And for Carrie Bradshaw — who hightails it out of town with her three best friends in Sex and the City 2 for an ultra luxe getaway to Abu Dhabi — the time away is spent reflecting on her recent nuptials to Mr. Big.

"There was a wedding, and now there has to be a marriage," explains Sarah Jessica Parker, who portrays the iconic fashionista.

The actress (in Elie Saab Couture), along with castmates Kim Cattrall, Kristin Davis, and Cynthia Nixon, is perched between glittery Louboutins and Manolo Blahniks in the shoe salon of Bergdorf Goodman for the film's press conference.

"Where Carrie finds herself at the top of the movie is starting, as she typically does, to ask herself about the environment in which she currently lives. Those questions and the theme of the movie for all of us, is tradition. Why do we run toward it? Why do we push it away, and why, when we so willingly want to commit to the institution of marriage, do we find ourselves squirming and asking questions? How do we define tradition for ourselves?" wonders the actress aloud.

And then, she adds with a smile, "What better place to ask these questions than the Middle East?"

Sex and the City 2 opens next week

Carrie, played by Sarah Jessica Parker, heads to the Middle East in Sex and the City 2.

Though vacations with girlfriends can also mean nasty fights (have you been following The Real Housewives of New York?), Parker says that the bond these characters share, in addition to being the hallmark of the blockbuster, is what she finds most powerful.

"In an era where women are really unkind to one and other, and call each other horrible names, and there's vernacular that our ears have adapted to, which I find really objectionable, I really really love how these women love each other. How decent and honorable they are to one another," she says.

"I love that they were never made to be friends. Their DNA is so radically different from one to the next, and they have found this incomparable friendship that is truly inspiring to me, and it changes the way I think about my friendships constantly."

Life with Kim

- Though in the past there have been rumours of onset feuds, Parker extols about the joys of shooting in Morocco (where the film was shot): "It was one of the great experiences of my professional life to live and work with this cast and that crew every single day. To see the sun rise in our location in the most far flung places. To lie in a bed all day with these women exhausted and laughing. To be on a camel with Kim Cattrall, which disobeyed all orders!" To which Cattrall quips, "Not many people can say that."

Shrek has the last laugh

Rumpelstiltskin has a showdown with everyone's favourite ogre.

Shrek Forever After

Director: Mike Mitchell
Stars: Mike Myers, Cameron Diaz,
Classification: PG
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Whether that new title is a promise or a simple marketing ploy, the fourth Shrek film at least does a good job of putting a positive punctuation mark on a series that's seen a rapid decline in quality over the course of the previous three instalments.

The latest — and supposedly last — makes a valiant effort of recapturing the tone and spirit of the original Shrek, with more wisecre takes on fairy tale tropes and fewer obnoxious pop culture references.

Tossing on a loose-fitting It's a Wonderful Life coat, the film picks up with Shrek (Mike Myers), Fiona (Cameron Diaz) and company enjoying their "happily ever after," although the ogre himself isn't so happy. He signs a foolish deal with Rumpelstiltskin (voiced by DreamWorks story head Walt Dohrn), a pint-sized power-mad ginger who at one point had the keys to the kingdom in his grasp before Shrek went and ruined his plans by rescuing Fiona. Shrek is then plunged into a world where Rumpelstiltskin is king, he's still a swamp-dwelling menace.

The setup and plot are familiar and predictable, but one thing the Shrek team does well — when they're firing on all cylinders — is make the familiar and predictable fun and exciting nonetheless.

FOREIGN Young Barry Obama is struggling with his pingpong shot. Or rather, 12-year-old Hasan Faruq Ali is struggling to play left-handed in imitation of the character he is portraying in a new Indonesian film, Little Obama. "Hasan has the walk, he has the posture of Barry," said Slamet Djanuadi, a consultant on the film and a childhood friend of President Barack Obama when he lived in Indonesia from 1967 to 1971. "But Barry was a better pingpong player," he laughed, watching Hasan hit the ball off the table. The movie, produced by Multivision Plus, Indonesia's largest production company, will premiere in Indonesia on June 17.

SNL sketch strikes gold

MacGruber

Director: Jorma Taccone
Stars: Will Forte, Kirsten Wiig, Ryan Phillipe
Classification: 18A
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

Ryan Phillipe, left, and Will Forte star in MacGruber.

In general Saturday Night Live movies aren't very good.

Sure, there are exceptions like The Blues Brothers, but for the most part the sketch-to-screen adaptations go a little bit more like Coneheads.

It's been a decade since Lorne Michaels last ushered one of his popular sketches into movie theaters and fortunately it's been worth the wait.

MacGruber may have started as a 90-second joke, but now it's a fully realized and gleefully offensive spoof/homage of delightfully dumb action movies. There are no grating catchphrases, distracting comedian cameos, or Xeroxed TV gags here. Had the original SNL sketches not existed, MacGruber could stand on it's own as a damn entertaining comedy.

If you're not familiar with Will Forte's MacGruber, he's a special agent in the DIY MacGyver mold. Of course, he's not very good and tends to blow things up. In the film he's given a nemesis who is one typo a way from being unfit to print, Dieter Von Cunth (Val Kilmer). The movie opens with Cunth stealing a missile and soon MacGruber comes out of retirement to stop him alongside a potential love interest (Kristen Wiig) and a young military hotshot (Ryan Phillippe).

It's a plot you've seen many times before, but exaggerated just enough to be hilarious.

Of course, this isn't just some film school satire. It's also filled with enough potty mouth language, bathroom humor, and filthy sight gags to be a solid R-rated comedy. Sure, it doesn't demand much brainpower, but sometimes dumb laughs are enough.

MacGruber shouldn't have been this good. Hopefully it won't be unfairly dismissed as a lazy SNL retread, because it's unlikely that a funnier flick will be released this summer.

Beneath pop art, there's empathy

Leslie, My Name is Evil

Director: Reg Harkema
Stars: Kristin Hager, Gregory Smith
Classification: STC
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

Kristin Hager stars in Leslie, My Name is Evil.

REVIEW The sight of Cancon king Don McKellar orating in front of a wall-sized rendering of the Stars and Stripes is one of the best jokes in Reg Harkema's Leslie, My Name is Evil, a comic fugue based on the story of Manson family member Leslie Van Houten.

The shot hints at the contradiction at the film's core, which is that Canadian filmmaker Harkema has shifted his gaze south of the 49th parallel: Working in a style that blends filmic influences high and low, the director enshrines — and then interrogates — the cultural divide of the post-Camelot years in the United States.

Harkema is an obvious admirer of Jean-Luc Godard, and Leslie is nothing if not dialectical, with Gregory Smith's straight-arrow chemist Perry (who becomes a juror at Manson's trial) standing in for "straight" society sand Kristen Hager's California cutie Leslie representing the allure of a free-love counterculture — and also the dangers of unchecked idealism, as she falls in with cult leader Charlie (Ryan Robbins, eschewing Mansonian caricature) and becomes his malleable apostle. The film's surfaces are pure pop-art (and frequently dazzling, at that) but there's also some real empathy — and anger — roiling underneath.

Kites brings wild excess of Bollywood

Barbara Mori and Hrithik Roshan star in the Bollywood production Kites.

Kites
Director: Anurag Basu
Stars: Hrithik Roshan, Barbara Mori
Classification: STC
Rating: 🌐🌐½

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

Kites has been conceived and executed as a hybrid of the world's two largest industrial cinemas, filtering over-amped Bollywood melodrama through glossy Hollywood aesthetics.

And if that's not high-concept enough for you, the epically scaled film has also been "remixed" by producer Brett Ratner into a 90-minute version for the short-attention span crowd.

Certainly, the 130-minute cut of Kites could stand some trimming, but part of the film's charm is bound up in its wild excess.

The opening scenes glide along on the larger-than-life charm of star Hrithik Roshan as Jay, a Hindi hustler waylaid in Las Vegas whose cash-for-marriage scam gets complicated twice over.

Problem No. 1: He falls in love with the gorgeous Spanish girl (Barbara Mori) who is paying him to get a green card; Problem No. 2: When he pursues her, he discovers she's engaged to be married to the son of a local crime boss, whose daughter has her own designs on him.

It's an amusingly humid quadrangle, but eventually, the film settles into a standard chase-movie mode, with Roshan and Mori recast as the post-globalization equivalents of Bonnie and Clyde, fleeing (with the top down) across the dustier parts of the United States.

All manner of highway hijinks ensue, including a car-transport smash-up lifted from Bad Boys 2, interspersed with love scenes hat make the dialogue exchanges in Twilight seem austere by comparison.

With its inventory of puppy-eyed close-ups, slo-motion clinches, Indian pop song montages and telegraphed intimations of impending tragedy the film suggests nothing so much as the promo for Enrique Iglaesias' Hero distended to feature length – albeit with slightly better music.

Watts film most political at fest

CANNES Naomi Watts has gotten used to playing unstable women. But with the Cannes Film Festival entry Fair Game, Watts is playing a woman as steady as they come in Valerie Plame, whose secret CIA identity was leaked by the George W. Bush administration.

Directed by Doug Liman (The Bourne Identity, Mr. and Mrs. Smith), Fair Game chronicles the battle Plame and husband Joe Wilson (Sean Penn) fought in the scandal that called into question the White House's rationale for going to war in Iraq in search of weapons of mass destruction.

One of 19 movies competing for the festival's main prize, Fair Game arguably is the most politically charged film to play in the Cannes main competition since Michael Moore's war-on-terror documentary Fahrenheit 9/11, which won the top award in 2004.

Let down by heroine

The Cry of The Owl

Director: Jamie Thraves
Stars: Paddy Considine, Julia Stiles
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●½

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

Julia Stiles stars in The Cry Of The Owl.

At her best, the American novelist Patricia Highsmith located the sweet spot between potboiler suspense tactics and comic detachment.

Novels like Strangers on a Train and The Talented Mr. Ripley became high-water marks for the literary thriller, while inspiring impressive (if only variably faithful) film adaptations.

Music-video veteran Jamie Thraves' take on Highsmith's more obscure 1962 novel The Cry of the Owl is notable for hewing more closely to its source material, retaining not only the basic set-up — a lonely man spends his nights spying on a young woman who lives alone at the edge of the woods — but also most of the elaborately plotted follow-through.

Paddy Considine was a good choice for the role of Robert Forster, a man so dissatisfied in his own skin that even his attempts at self-deprecating humour come off as scarily hollow. Considine does a good job approximating discomfort, but he's let down by his co-star. In a part that requires the delicate modulation of emotion, Julia Stiles is merely blank.

The tonal mismatch between the two lead performances unbalances the film, although Thraves, best known for Radiohead's haunting Just promo clip, does manage some lingeringly odd images — like a dog's grotesque farewell to its master — in between a lot of direct-to-DVD quality sequences.

Caine shines as Brown

Harry Brown
Director: Daniel Barber
Stars: Michael Caine, Emily Mortimer
Classification: STC
Rating: ★★★½

RICHARD CROUSE

Michael Caine, left, stars in Harry Brown.

Harry Brown is a common name, like John Smith or Greg Jones.

It's the kind of name that doesn't draw attention to itself, but in the hands of Michael Caine, who plays the lead character in the revenge thriller Harry Brown, the name, the character and the movie become memorable.

Harry Brown is a gritty Gran Torino with British accents and a dash of Death Wish. Caine plays Brown as High Noon's Gary Cooper, but instead of being set on the wide open plain, the action in this teabag western takes place in the urban terrain of the Elephant and Castle section of London.

Caine is a widowed man who strikes back after a gang of feral yobs kill his best mate and confidant Len (David Bradley). D.I. Alice Frampton, (Emily Mortimer), a persistent but ineffectual detective with the thankless job of policing the council estate, suspects Harry is a part time vigilante but can't prove it, and even if she could, her partner is ambivalent to the pensioner's gun slinging ways. "As far as I'm concerned, Harry Brown is doing us a favour," says D.S. Terry Hicock (Charlie Creed-Miles).

Harry Brown is a lurid picture of a crime-ridden society. Its bleak worldview effectively illustrates the flip side of the swingin' London Caine came to personify in the 1960s. It's a dark and menacing world where Len admits, "I'm scared all the time, Harry."

But all the atmosphere in the world wouldn't be worth a hill of bangers and mash if you didn't believe that an 80-year-old man with an inhaler could effectively turn vigilante, take the law into his own hands and go all Dirty Harry on kids a fraction his age.

In a film ripe with nice performances — Mortimer is marvelous and Jack O'Connell is frightening as a young thug — Michael Caine shines, giving us a well rounded portrait of a man who is a trained killer — he was a marine — with a "certain set of skills" and as a defeated old man who has seen too much death and strife in his life.

He's at his best when he plays the extremes — the heartbroken pensioner on one hand; the lethal killer who tosses off Tarantino-esque one liners like, "You failed to maintain your weapon, son," to a drug dealer whose gun jammed at the wrong moment.

Ben Kingsley adds another feather to his varied career with his role in Prince of Persia.

'Lean and mean'

Kingsley relishes bad guy role in Prince of Persia

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

A veteran of over 90 films, winner of countless awards, and an honorary knight referred to as "Sir Ben" in Britain, Ben Kingsley is one of the most respected actors of his generation.

Best known for his Oscar-winning turn as a man of peace in Gandhi and the career-altering bile he spilled on screen in Sexy Beast, Kingsley is an unpredictable actor who deliberately never plays the same role twice.

His latest film is both a Disney production and a video game adaptation: Prince Of Persia: The Sands Of Time. It's a surprising choice from the respected British thespian, but for Kingsley the fact that the film was such a departure was the exact reason to do it.

"I think that the biggest jump that I was privileged to make in my career was going from theatre to film," Kingsley tells Metro. "That was a great shift for me and it was successful in that I went from Shakespeare to Gandhi and I didn't die. I'm still enjoying those jumps. I somehow have a demon inside me who says 'it won't kill you. Go and do something different.'"

Prince Of Persia is certainly a leap for Kingsley, placing him in complicated action sequences that have never really been part of his career before. The actor was quick to acknowledge that these sort of movies can typically overshadow performance with spectacle, but his worries were dismissed when he learned that the film would be directed by Mike Newell (Donnie Brasco).

Prince of Persia opens next Friday

"I think it crossed my mind until I knew who was directing the film. When I knew that it was Mike Newell and we all sat down together and read the screenplay, it was clear from Mike and from the cast that he had chosen so well, that there was at the heart of this amazing drama a character-driven piece about a family," said Kingsley.

The film gives Sir Ben the opportunity to play a villain again, which he sadly does all too rarely. As one would expect, the actor put a great deal of consideration into his approach to the role, elevating what could have easily just been a cartoon villain.

"My character could have been Shakespeare's Richard III or he could have been a second rate baddy," admitted Kingsley. "I don't slant or push my performance one way or the other. I try to keep it as balanced as possible ... I keep it lean and clean. Sometimes lean, clean, and mean."

Shrek, the jolly green ogre made famous by Mike Myers, may be the most popular movie ogre but he's not the only one.

As the "lovable lug who showed that you don't have to change your undies to change the world" brings Shrek Forever After to the big screen this weekend, he joins the ranks of ogres seduced by the glamour of the movies.

The Shrek series plays the ogre card for laughs — "I used to be an ogre but now I'm a jolly green joke," he complains — but movies generally haven't strayed from the hideous humanoid stereotype —not counting Revenge of the Nerds's Fred "Ogre" Palowakski, of course.

So horrifying is the classic ogre portrait that in France it's thought to be based on notorious serial killer Gilles de Rais who allegedly murdered 200 children.

Occasionally ogres are given a light-hearted treatment, like Mr and Mrs. Ogre in Terry Gilliam's Time Bandits, who, when they scoop up the band of bandits in their fishing net squeal, "Aren't they lovely? We can have them for breakfast," but usually they are portrayed as terrifying creatures, like the lead in the appropriately named Sci-Fi Channel B-movie Ogre.

Set in Ellensworth, Pa., 150 years after the town's citizens made a deal with a shaman to rid their village of a deadly disease by changing the plague into the physical manifestation of an ogre — best described as the offspring of the Yeti and Zippy the Pinhead — the movie shows what happens when the beast gets hungry and gets loose.

With the tagline "No Donkey. No Fairy Tale. Just TERROR," you know this is the anti-Shrek.

The first film ogre was featured in the 1902 silent version of Jack and the Beanstalk.

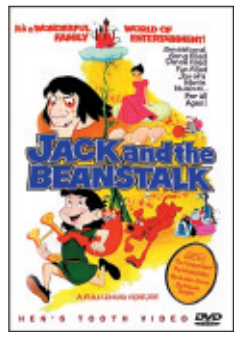
That ogre is little more than a tall man with a spiked club, but the film has some cool rudimentary special effects.

Trippier than that is the ogre in a 1974 Japanese anime retelling of the classic tale.

In that version the ogre, named Tulip, is the son of a witch who lives in a psychedelic world atop the beanstalk. What's in those magic beans?

Shrek Forever After may (or may not) be the last Shrek film — "The door may not be locked but it's definitely latched," says Myers on the never-say-never Hollywood rule of sequels — but even if it is there is no shortage of other movie ogres with stories to tell.

Richard Crouse's Movie Show can be seen every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the E! Channel; mrchaos33@hotmail.com.



The Sci-Fi Channel movie Ogre, left, came with the tagline "No Donkey. No Fairy Tale. Just Terror;" A 1974 Japanese version of Jack And The Beanstalk featured an ogre named Tulip.

Iron Man 2
●●½

REVIEW Iron Man 2 opens not with a bang but with a whimper, as Mickey Rourke's Ivan Vanko — later to become villain Whiplash, weeps over his dying father in a cluttered Moscow apartment. It's a big risk for an action tentpole, but one a filmmaker like Jon Favreau can make riding a wave of goodwill after the franchise's critically and commercially successful first chapter two years ago. Unfortunately, Favreau and company spend the next two hours squandering all that good will. The film's primary problem is that it sidelines its main hero and villain, both Stark and Whiplash sequestered in their labs tinkering while supporting characters carry on without them. But among those supporting characters left to move the story without them, there are some enjoyable nods.

Ned Ehrbar/Metro World New s

Robin Hood

REVIEW The lore of Robin Hood is so ingrained in minds that trying to produce a story that essentially imagines how he became who he became is remarkably redundant. Filmmaker Ridley Scott teams up with Russell Crowe for the fifth time to reawaken this character but beyond a few flashy action sequences which (in the wake of every medieval fantasy produced since Lord of the Rings) may be impressive but are far from mind-blowing. Crowe and Cate Blanchett (as a damsel never quite in distress) have the Oscar-winning acting chops to breathe life into this blockbuster blueprint.

Steve Gow/For Metro Canada

Letters to Juliet
●●½

REVIEW Amanda Seyfried's everywhere these days. From Big Love to a slew of recent films, the doe-eyed blond, who is as ubiquitous as she is unconventionally beautiful, has tackled a range of roles. Letters to Juliet's Sophie is worlds away from the titular character in Chloe or as Needy in Jennifer's Body. Even if her choices seem odd, there's no denying the girl is skilled. As for Vanessa Redgrave, her presence elevates any film. She is the heart and soul of Letters, able to convey meaning with the slightest gesture. The film is straightup eye candy, but a few clunky lines that don't belong break the intended spell with a thud.

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

REVIEW A simple 75-minute chronicle of one man stuck babysitting geriatrics, Mid-August Lunch is one of those few movies that does so much with so little.

Written, directed and starring Gianni Di Gregorio (who co-wrote the award-winning crime-drama Gomorrah), Gianni is a broke middle-aged bachelor who still shares living space with his elderly mother. Behind on his bills, he strikes a deal to look after his landlord's mama during a holiday weekend — an arrangement that soon sees his Roman apartment a sanctuary for four seniors.

In Hollywood, this is where someone like Steve Martin would play a hapless, bumbling buffoon to an assembly of overbearing octogenarians for cheap gags. However, Gianni is capable and responsible and Di Gregorio plays out plot points with such subtle grace, you might not notice them slip by. We're so accustomed to cinematic cliché, that a film like this may take you by surprise.

After all, the film unfolds without much more drama than dietary restrictions and a squabble over the TV but its realism is determined. The first-time director captures a charming slice of life without the foolish sentimentality of most Hollywood melodramas.

The truth about Bubbles and Toast

SoundCheck

Last week I dipped into my mail bag to mark hitting the 100 column milestone for Metro. Well, the questions keep coming.

Q Why isn't there more music in podcasts?
— Ian, Vancouver

A I get this one a lot in regards to the podcasts that go with my radio shows, The Ongoing History of New Music and ExploreMusic. The right to reproduce and distribute copyrighted music is fiercely guarded by record labels and music publishers. Unless the podcaster can secure permission to use music, it is verboten. Major labels almost never grant such permission. On the other hand, indie bands and labels are more open to the idea since they're looking to get the word out on their stuff as much (and as cheaply!) as possible. They're often only too happy to grant permission, which has led to a proliferation in indie-friendly podcasts and the rise in indie culture in general.

Q Is it true that Bubbles from the Trailer Park Boys used to be in a band?
— John, Calgary

A He was in a Pictou, N.S., band called Sandbox, which released a pretty good record called Bionic in 1996. Propelled by a single called Curious, the album won three East Coast Music Awards and was nominated for a Juno before breaking up.

Q How many musicians has actress Winona Ryder dated?
— Lisa, Toronto

A I counted them up once and the number I arrived at was 22. But then again, that was a couple of years ago.

Q What does the guy in the video for Radiohead's Just say that convinces everyone to lie down on the sidewalk with him?
— Mikhail, Hamilton

A We'll never know. Director Jamie Thraves says we're not supposed to know. That's what makes the video so compelling.

Q What's that spoken word song (done in a Cockney accent) from the '70s about the glories of making toast?
— Owen, Toronto

A In 1978, a group called Street Band recorded a single called Hold On which featured a track called Toast on the B-side. The song had been concocted during a gig where they needed to stretch for time. When the moment came to record a single, the band decided to include it as a joke. However, because Britain was in the midst of a bakers' strike when it came out, several BBC DJs decided that Toast was a better bet than Hold On. Street Band was forever branded a novelty group and soon broke up.

After shooting to fame with 2007's album, Cease To Begin, indie act Band of Horses is back with a new release, Infinite Arms.

Wilderness retreat

Band of Horses singer finds inspiration at secluded cottage

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Toronto

If you've ever wondered where Band of Horses' laid back twangy sound comes from, here's your answer — a cottage near Bob Dylan's boyhood home.

Ben Bridwell, the band's lead singer, recorded the group's latest disc, Infinite Arms, near Hibbing, Minn. — less than two hours from the Ontario border. He didn't pick that place to channel Dylan, though, he just wanted to be alone. "I need to know that people can't hear me," he says. "It's embarrassing when I'm screaming my balls off."

That's not the only secluded spot Bridwell has written in — "I've done it in a cabin on a lake, a caboose on an ocean and a cabin in the mountains," he says.

Wherever he writes it seems to be working. The group shot to indie fame in 2007 with the stunning disc Cease To Begin and the new one picks up where that one left off.

For the most part, Infinite Arms sounds a lot like past efforts. Bridwell's smooth, high-pitched vocals, rich Beach Boys-ish harmonies and folk pop sensibility permeates much of the disc. The singer says he can't help it if the new record sounds like his older ones.

"I'm limited in my musical ability," he says. "I started this game late, so it's not hard for me to sound like me."

But there are differences. There's more country twang, the rock songs are louder, and each track is more polished. That could have something to do with the band's new players. The group has grown from a trio to a five-piece over the last couple of years. Unlike on Cease To Begin, almost all the band members contributed to this record.

"These guys are bringing stuff to table I wouldn't write," says Bridwell. "We finally got talented songwriters so it's a no brainer that I wanted to expand the reach for new dynamics of songwriting."

It's not just the songwriters that are new, however. For the first time, the band financed and produced this record themselves. It was an expensive undertaking, but Bridwell has had a lot of success licensing songs so he was able to pay for everything.

Going the DIY route gave the band more freedom. It also allowed them to sell their disc to the highest bidder, which turned out to be Fat Possum records, a subsidiary of major label Sony Music.

Jumping to a major shouldn't come as a surprise — other similar sounding acts like Death Cab For Cutie have made the move too.

"There was really no doubt in my mind," he says. "People have been knocking at the door for a while so I had a good feeling we'd get paid back."

So far they're enjoying their new bosses. "It seems exciting to swim in that big pond," he says "I'm not going to be shy, I wouldn't hide it if I was having negative experience, but so far there's been no bullsh—t."

"We finally got talented songwriters so it's a no brainer that I wanted to expand the reach for new dynamics of songwriting."
Ben Bridwell

Janelle Monae plots musical revolution

If you're going to a Janelle Monae performance, be prepared to get up and dance. Even if the music doesn't move you — and it most likely will — her agents will plot to get you on your feet.

Janelle Monae

At a recent concert to preview her first full-length album, the critically acclaimed The ArchAndroid, her backup dancers literally pulled people out of their seats, while other members of the Monae nation ordered people to move.

"You don't come to a Janelle Monae show to sit!" one woman barked.

The experience is almost like participating in a spiritual conversion, and in some ways, that's what Monae is hoping to achieve with her music — a revolution of the mind, one frenetic beat at a time.

"Sometimes you have to show how to dance to a song — like, they don't know until they see an example," the 24-year-old singer-songwriter explains. "I want them to allow the music to transform them as much as it's transformed me ... (the music) deals with self-realization, and I think if they listen to it from the beginning to the end, they will have an emotion picture experience."

Monae hopes to have the same impact on her followers that Lauryn Hill had on her. Back then, when Monae was growing up in Kansas City, Kan., Hill's Grammy-winning The Miseducation of Lauryn Hill was one of the albums that expanded her musical horizons.

"You just got a sense that she knew as an artist that she was a leader, and she led me to a place that no other artist had been able to do, female artist,"

Alice flies the coop

KEITH CARMAN
for Metro Canada

"This is weird ... even for me," declares legendary singer Alice Cooper about his current stage show.

Cooper is revered for helping to create the shock rock genre in the early-1970s. He did so by uniting edgy music with an intense, theatrical performance featuring mock executions, oversized props and more.

However, with his extravaganza reconfigured by an outside choreographer for this current stint — dubbed The Gruesome Twosome Tour — even The Coop has been thrown off his game. By his own doing, mind you.

"I think that after directing the show for so many years, people knew what to expect," Cooper reveals about feeling his concerts had become complacent. "(Fans) could anticipate where I'd be going or what might happen. I wanted to take that away so I took my hands off the production and gave the reins to someone else."

Alice Cooper got some help choreographing for this current tour.

Without revealing too many details, Cooper points out that the results of hiring a director/choreographer for the show are clearly outside his comfort zone, forcing him to come to terms with the new script.

"They have me doing things I never expected. At one point, I'm standing on a garbage can with a noose around my neck dressed in a nurse's outfit. At first, I was like, 'You want me to do what? I don't know if I like that idea.' But that's what Alice Cooper is about: Unnerving you and doing the unexpected. So even Alice had to accept it."

The Coop is starting to warm up to this fresh approach even if it is mockingly begrudgingly.

"Yeah, I had to get used (the new show) but now I like it," he concedes cheerfully. "This is the most intense show I've done in years, it has so many new parts. It's quite exciting and somewhat invigorating."

At that, Cooper notes how touring with Rob Zombie is equally stimulating. A colleague and obvious understudy with his own overtly animated and stunning, carnivalesque performances, the two have much in common. It leads one to wonder why a production of this sort is only happening now, 20-something years into their friendship.

"You know, I wondered the same thing," he smiles. "But at least it's happening. It's like a double-feature because Rob and I are quite similar yet I think what we do is different enough to be complimentary."

"In a horror movie context, I'm using old school physical effects while he's CGI so we cover a wide berth. My show is quite cerebral; a tongue-in-cheek Vaudevillian theatricality with props and choreography. His features video and pyrotechnics while he's up there dancing around like a Voodoo high priest that just crawled out of a swamp ... He's like a younger brother to me. It's fun."

Bachelorette wants to focus on love

Ali Fedotowsky ditched The Bachelor last season for her job.

The smiley former Facebook advertising account manager now has a new gig as The Bachelorette. Fedotowsky is the latest leading lady in a long line of single men and woman — 20, to be exact — selected to sift through a stack of suitors in hopes of finding the perfect match on the interconnected, long-running ABC reality dating franchise. Fedotowsky previously chose her career over Jake Pavelka, who was dumped by Jillian Harris on the fifth edition of The Bachelorette.

In a recent interview, the 25-year-old Clark University graduate reminisced about Pavelka, discussed her most athletic suitors and recalled when a boyfriend cheated on her — while she was sleeping.

Premieres May 24 on Citytv

PHOTO PROVIDED

Ali Fedotowsky is no stranger to the Bachelor/Bachelorette reality TV series but this time around she'll be doing the choosing.

Q Why did you want to do The Bachelorette after what happened last season with Jake?

A My decision to choose my job over Jake last season was really hard. I think it worked out for the best because he is now in love and has his relationship, and he's engaged and happy, and I'm happy, and that's really all that matters. This time, I decided I wanted to do what's best for me, and that's putting love first.

Q Have you seen or spoken with Jake since the show? Do you still have feelings for him?

A I haven't seen Jake since the show. I wanted to watch him on Dancing With the Stars, because I heard he's really great. I don't have those kind of feelings. I will always care for him as a friend. He's a great guy and a great person, but I've definitely moved on.

Q How do you feel about infidelity? Have you ever had a boyfriend cheat on you?

A I've had a boyfriend cheat on me — in a bad way — while I was sleeping in another room. It was in another room of my house. It's wrong. It's unforgivable. Do I necessarily think once a cheater always a cheater? No, I don't think that, but I think once you've done it once in a relationship, it's very hard to recover in that relationship.

Q Tell us about some of your suitors, like professional wrestler Justin Rego and baseball player Roberto Martinez.

A Justin is an emotional guy. You would think that being a strong wrestler that he would not really be that way, but you'll be surprised the other side that you see of Justin. Roberto is a great guy. You might see a little bit of baseball on the show.

Q Are you happy with the experience? Are you in love? Are you engaged?

A Do I have tan on my ring finger? I'm very happy. I just made the decisions that were the ones I felt the most confident in along the way.

I'm very proud of each decision that I made, whether or not I fell in love, you'll have to tune in to see.

Law student to play a lawyer

NEW SERIES Jerry O'Connell hopes to get school credit for his new acting gig.

He'll play a lawyer on the new CBS television show The Defenders this fall alongside Jim Belushi. In real life, he recently finished his first year at Southwestern Law School in Los Angeles.

CBS describes The Defenders as a comedic drama about two colourful Las Vegas defence attorneys.

The 36-year-old O'Connell says The Defenders is a little more complicated than the basics he learned in his first year of law school but he was able to recognize some tidbits.

Law school is on hold while O'Connell plays a lawyer on TV. But he says he plans to get his degree.

Susan Boyle set for a Glee-ful Christmas

Glee has already had some phenomenal guest-stars so far, including Josh Groban, Kristin Chenoweth, and, last week, Neil Patrick Harris. Now, EW is reporting Susan Boyle will appear in a season two Christmas episode. EW.COM

Groff happy for second chance at Glee

IAN JOHNSTON
for Metro Canada

According to Jonathan Groff, fans of TV's Glee seem "okay" with his character Jesse St. James, a hated Glee club rival and romantic interloper.

"I haven't been spit on yet," laughs Groff. "And I got to say — I don't see Jesse as a bad guy. I think maybe Rachel (Lea Michele) has found a match in Jesse. But that's just me."

Of course, it helps that Groff's on-screen paramour is also his long time best friend. Groff and Michele worked the Broadway stage together years ago in a production of Spring Awakening.

"It was my first big break. And to be working with my best friend now doesn't seem like work at all."

It wasn't a complete coincidence that they would end up on the same TV show. It was Groff who first introduced Michele to Glee creator Ryan Murphy. And when Murphy first mentioned he was working on a new show called Glee, he already had Groff in mind for a part.

Glee's Jonathan Groff

Problem was Groff was initially tied up with another series pilot. But when that failed to catch on, Glee beckoned.

"A role was written specifically for me for the back nine episodes," says Groff, whose late arrival has given him a unique perspective on the series' rapid, overwhelming success.

"I saw Glee explode from my TV at home. Then I got dropped into the hurricane."

So far, Groff counts his duet with Michele on Lionel Richie's Hello as a show favorite. And his toughest musical moment? AC/DC's Highway To Hell.

"I'm a singer before a dancer. Dancing is something that that doesn't ever come easily."

As for Jesse St. James' future on the series, it's up in the air. Though Glee was renewed for another season a long time ago (and was recently awarded the coveted time slot after next year's Super Bowl), Groff isn't sure what his role might be.

"Details for my involvement haven't been worked out yet," he says. "But I'd love to see Rachel and Jesse end up together."

Glee airs Tuesdays at 9 p.m. on Global.

Taylor Swift is fearless!

Taylor Swift is a girl who just wants to be loved. And her fans happily comply. During every one of her sold out Fearless concerts, they stomp their feet and scream: "Taylor, Taylor" for minutes on end. Even the star is speechless.

But it's a reciprocal thing, with Taylor doing little things like upgrading the millionth ticket – sold to a Kansas college student named Rachel -- to front row centre; asking the university choir who taped their version of her hit song on YouTube to join her as back up at the country music awards; performing many numbers on a revolving stage at the back of the venue; strutting through the crowd of young girls, hugging and telling them how pretty they are.

Taylor's appeal is definitely her 'Gurlpower' message: "If guys don't want me to write bad songs about them, they shouldn't do bad things," and lyrics that tell of girls not to put up with "crap" from anybody. But the medium is part of that message, and fans can expect another crowd-pleaser show in Toronto May 21 and 22: overhead videos; constant dress changes (from demure sundress and cowboy boots and slinky sparkly affairs, to a white band uniform, hat and all).

> "If guys don't want me to write bad songs about them, they shouldn't do bad things,"

Special effects don't hurt either. There's a rain machine that soaks Taylor during the finale "Should've Said No," while she lies down in her beautiful wet black dress with the crystal trimmed neckline, makes a heart with her hands and raises it to the sky.

During "Love Story," Taylor and her dancers are bedecked in Victorian clothing against a castle backdrop; mid-song she changes to a long white flowing dress and tiara that she then places on a young girl's head.

For all that, the 20 year-old country pop sensation is a pretty normal kid -- still living with her parents and younger brother, writing songs in her bedroom, and defining rebellion as singing a song about someone knowing they're in the crowd. Apparently, she also loves grocery stores, likes to organize her closets and colour code her clothing, and wears contact lenses.

Opening the show are Kellie Pickler, a former American Idol contestant, and country rock singer, and rock singer Gloriana, who sings Fleetwood Mac's Go Your Own Way. The concert, lasting more than two hours, will leave fans swooning and screaming for more. ◆

Taylor says so...and why fans love her

Taylor Swift songs and lyrics connect up close and personal with her legion of fans. One of 12-year-old Hannah Corby's favourites is Fifteen. "I like what the song means," says Hannah of Ajax, Ont. "She's talking about being 15 and a guy telling her he loves her... but you can't always believe them." Hannah's other favourites are Picture to Burn and Our Song. "I like the way she's a cross between modern pop music and country. She has a cool sound."

"I love her songs and how she writes her own songs," says 10-year-old Anna Zizys, who lives in Toronto. "And I love her voice." Fifteen is one of Anna's favourite songs as are You Belong to Me, Jump and Fall, and Love Story.

Fearless, Taylor's song that headlines the concert, is about the fearlessness of falling in love. "No matter how many break-up songs you write, no matter how many times you get hurt, you will always fall in love again," she explains at www.bigmachinerecords.com. "When I wrote Fearless (with Liz Rose and Hillary Lindsey), I wasn't dating anyone. I wasn't even in the beginning stages of dating anybody. This song is about the best first date I haven't had yet." ◆

> "No matter how many break-up songs you write, no matter how many times you get hurt, you will always fall in love again,"

Taylor is tops!

Taylor Swift swept onto the music scene just a few short years ago and now enjoys a huge following around the world.

She is an amazing talent having written or co-written every song on her two multiplatinum-selling CDs: the 2006 self-titled debut and 2008's "Fearless," which won a Grammy Award for album of the year among other top honors. Next month Taylor will receive the Hal David Starlight Award at the Songwriters Hall of Fame Awards in New York. Recently, she was nominated three times in the final round of voting for the CMT Music Awards (for Video of the Year and Female Video of the Year with "You Belong With Me" and for Collaborative Video of the Year with Kellie Pickler on "Best Days of Your Life.")

Taylor says she was influenced by Shania Twain, the Dixie Chicks, Faith Hill, Patsy Cline and Dolly Parton. ◆

Final season of Smallville

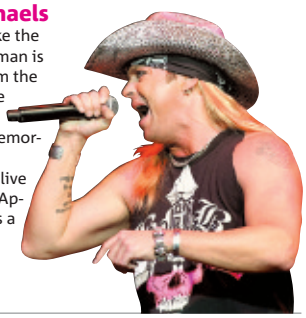
The fate of Smallville has finally been decided: Its 10th season will be its last. The long-running superhero series will come to a close following its upcoming season this fall, the CW said Wednesday. TVGUIDE.COM

Going Out

Metro's 7th Heaven: Metro taps what's hot right now

1 Bret Michaels

TV It looks like the Poison frontman is set to go from the emergency room to the boardroom. Michaels, who suffered a brain hemorrhage last month, will appear on next week's live finale of The Celebrity Apprentice — and there is a good chance Donald Trump may announce "You're hired."



2 Balmshell Lip Gloss

BEAUTY Pucker, pout, pull faces. Whatever you do, punch up your lip-smacking power with one of Balmshell's 10 sensuous shades of lip-gloss. Canadian made, paraben-free and stuffed with jojoba oil, each colour has its own girly floating illustration built right into the tube, turning touch up time into play time.

3 True Blood Season 2

DVD It will be a fang-tastical day on Tuesday when the second season of the hit HBO show debuts on DVD. Season Two is currently airing on Space, but that's no reason to avoid buying the box set and skipping ahead to find out the fate of Sookie Stackhouse and the rest of the residents of Bon Temps.

4 Victoria Day

HOLIDAY Sure, technically summer doesn't hit until June 21, but this weekend marks Canada's psychological arrival of the season. It's a long weekend name for the longest reigning female monarch in world history — how can that not deserve a trip to the cottage and a "cold one" to celebrate.

5 Stratford, Ont.

TRAVEL Looks like Stratford, Ont., is the place for parents and their kids this summer. While mom and dad take in the annual theatre festival, their tweens can head out on a Justin Bieder-inspired tour of the town. See where he went to school, where he performed, and the Subway he liked to hang at. Visit welcometostratford.com/justin.

6 Xavier Dolan

FILM The Quebec filmmaker kept his title of Canada's golden boy of cinema, receiving positive reactions this week at Cannes for his sophomore film, Heartbeats. Last year, Dolan's debut I Killed my Mother was a smash hit at the film festival.

7 iPhone Remotes

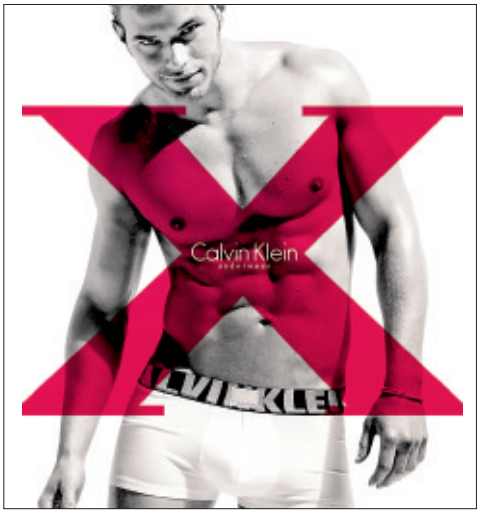
Calvin bites into Twilight's Kellan

MITZI MILLER
Metro World News

During a New York store appearance, the Twilight actor and Calvin Klein underwear poster boy Kellan Lutz talks vampires and briefs with Metro.



Twilight star Kellan Lutz went back to his modelling roots for the new Calvin Klein underwear campaign.

Q Before you began acting, you were a model. What about Calvin Klein Underwear made you want to go back to modeling again?

A I got into modeling when I was in a financial crisis. It was a great way to make money. I never thought I was pretty by any means. But it was great to be a part of that world. And the pinnacle of that world is to be on a billboard. I grew up wearing Calvin Klein. It's one of those things. As a model, I dreamt of being Marky Mark, being on a billboard and selling that company.

Q Speaking of Marky-Mark, were you nervous about comparisons when shooting this campaign?

A I was thrilled. I loved Marky-Mark's campaign. And by no means was I trying to fill his britches or, uh, boxer-briefs. I was just stepping into them and doing my best to follow in his footsteps. And that's all I can hope and pray for. I think the audience has really enjoyed the campaign so it's nice to be a part of it.

Q Any surprises in store for the next Twilight movie, Eclipse?

A It's really tough for our characters — the movies are based on the books. So a lot of characters are like — they barely have lines, they're barely in it. But you can't rewrite the books. And I'm just grateful to have a line or a purpose in there. But definitely, Emmett's character and story grow immensely in Eclipse. You see the battle between the newborns and you see the werewolves coming along. It's a big fighting movie and that's Emmett's strength. So there's the fighting and the big brother role, which is nice.

Q Since you were already in production, did you really have to prepare physically for this Calvin Klein campaign?

A Well I did. You know Emmett, my character, is more of the big guy. So I don't need the washboard abs, just the size. So I did a lot of push-ups and tons of protein. But for Calvin Klein, it's underwear. So I called up my buddy Rich McDonald who's a personal trainer friend of mine. He put me on a great diet that took out the candy (which I love) and the carbs past 4 o'clock (which I break here and there). And he told me a great thing, which is too drink water as much as you can. Cause when you don't drink water, your body needs to hold on to it to stay hydrated. So I started training with him and he got me into the shape that I need to be for the campaign. I trained for two weeks.

Q So ... boxers or briefs?

A Boxer-briefs! And I love the blue trimmed ones. The blue ones bring out my eyes. (laughs). I didn't come-up with that. I was on the street and I bent over to pick up my bag out the car and this girl yelled out, you have the blue ones on and your eyes are blue. And I was like, 'oh yeah, they do bring out my eyes!'

Celebrate Sao Paulo's scene

Brazil is known for its beaches, but it's this city that will inspire travellers

LIA HAMA
Metro World News

METRO WORLD NEWS

Brazil's beaches may be the place to be, but it's Sao Paulo that will make you want to visit.

Take a walking tour of the old neighbourhood, Centro.

Paulistanos (people from Sao Paulo) enjoy going out, and there are plenty of cool bars and clubs to choose from.

Start your day with a walking tour to the streets of the old downtown neighborhood of Centro. Climb to the top of the Banespa building for a 360-degree view of the city (Rua João Brícola, 24). Then, dine at Spot, a trendy restaurant where the hipsters hang out before downing a pint of draft in one of the many open-air bars.

WHERE TO STAY

Budget:
Casa Club Hostel

In the heart of bohemian Vila Madalena, this trendy hostel has a bar that's popular with students from the University of Sao Paulo and neighbourhood regulars.

A private en-suite will run you about $75.
(casaclub.com.br)

Deluxe: Fasano

One of the finest hotels in the city, the décor at the Fasano is inspired by the 1930s, with brown leather chairs and huge windows.

A one queen bed room will run you $700 a night.
(fasano.com.br)

WHERE TO EAT

Fogo de chão

Fogo de chão is the most famous churrascaria in Brazil. It serves churrasco — meat, poultry or fish roasted on spits over an open fire.
(fogodechao.com.br)

WHERE TO DRINK

Salve Jorge

A typical boteco, where paulistanos (people from São Paulo) end their day and begin their evening. Retractable roof plus sexy crowd plus beer on dry ice equals party waiting to happen.
(barsalvejorge.com.br)

WHERE TO GO CLUBBING

Studio SP

Mixing live music and street art, this place is an important spot for the new Brazilian music scene. Amongst the Brazilian and international artists that have played there are CSS (Cansei de Ser Sexy).

Lost in transportation

THIS IS ONE TRIP SHE WISHED SHE HADN'T DROPPED A judge issued a warrant Thursday for Lindsay Lohan's arrest after the actress missed a mandatory hearing. Bail was set at $100,000.

The 23-year-old actress was due in court for a progress report on her probation stemming from two arrests in 2007. Her attorney, Shawn Chapman Holley, said Lohan's passport was stolen while she was at the Cannes Film Festival and was unable to return to Los Angeles in time for Thursday's hearing.

"She did, in fact, have airline tickets," Holley told the judge. "From our standpoint, there is a valid reason for her not being here today."

Holley said Lohan would be back in the United States by Friday evening. Superior Court Judge Marsha Revel wasn't satisfied, saying the star has a history of missing scheduled appointments.

"If she wanted to be here, it looks to the court that she could have been here," Revel said.

The judge revoked Lohan's probation, issued the arrest warrant and imposed several conditions should Lohan make bail. She will be prohibited from drinking any alcohol, required to wear an alcohol-monitoring bracelet and submit to random weekly drug testing. Lohan could be arrested at the airport when she returns.

Lohan has been on probation since August 2007 after pleading guilty to misdemeanour drug charges and no contest to three driving charges. The plea came after a pair of high-profile arrests earlier that year.

HER NAME IS PASSPORT ENOUGH Paris Hilton nearly missed the parties in Cannes because she forgot her passport when heading to France from Spain, according to Page Six. "She had to turn around and get another flight," sister Nicky Hilton was overheard telling pals at a party in Cannes. Luckily, the passport was retrieved and a later flight was booked, and Paris made it in time for the festival parties and the Monaco Grand Prix.

OR WAS IT SHE LOVES KISSING KATE? Courtney Love has hinted for years that she had a lesbian fling with a supermodel, and she's now revealed that is was Kate Moss.

"It was Kate Moss. She doesn't care," Love tells Hot Press magazine.

"Kate wasn't doing a lot of drugs. It was just a thing that happened in Milan in the '90s. It happened and it was fun and whatever.

"And she talks about it and so I hope she doesn't get mad that I outed her about it. I feel like such a kiss-and-tell."

Bye bye, beautiful couple

AND ANOTHER ONE BITES THE DUST Amanda Seyfried said in a recent interview that she wasn't sure boyfriend Dominic Cooper is "the one," and it looks like she's taken her own words to heart.

The Mamma Mia co-stars are no longer dating, according to People magazine.

"Amanda and Dominic have been on and off for a while, and right now they're taking a break," a source says. "But they're great friends and could still get back together."

YAH, HE GETS AROUND Teen sensation Justin Bieber insists he is an old hand when it comes to making out with girls.

"I'm a good — I'm a great kisser.

"I've made out with a couple of chicks," he says in an interview on the syndicated Johnjay and Rich radio show.

Of course, the Range Rover mentor Usher gave him for his 16th birthday doesn't hurt.

"I mean, if you're driving you make a little stop at, you know, the Walmart rest stop. You're good," he says.

Trapped in tight quarters

AND ILLUSTRATING MANY A YOUNG GIRLS' FANTASY After delighting fans with a show at the Grove shopping complex in L.A., The Jonas Brothers found themselves trapped in an elevator for almost an hour, according to Page Six.

"For the first 15 minutes they thought it was funny, but after 30 they started to worry," a source says.

"Security guards finally managed to pry open the doors. The elevator was between floors. The brothers are skinny and easily squeezed out, but it was tougher for their giant bodyguard."

'Fish lips' Stone

NOW SHE'S ALL NATURAL. UH HUH Sharon Stone admits she opted for cosmetic surgery once, getting lip injections after her divorce from Phil Bronstein six years ago. But the results put her off the practice all together, she tells More magazine.

"Nobody loved me. I'm 103. My life would be better if I had better lips," she says of her rationale at the time. She was horrified with the finished product, saying the doctors had made her look "like a trout."

Metro Recipe of the Day

Steakhouse Salad

INGREDIENTS:

Steak:
4 red peppers
300 g trimmed filet mignon
1/2 tsp salt
1/2 tsp pepper
1 garlic clove
500 g green beans, trimmed

SALAD AND DRESSING:

3 tbsp balsamic vinegar
2 tsp extra-virgin olive oil
1 garlic clove
2 tbsp minced shallot
8 cups mesclun
6 tomatoes, cut into wedges

METHOD:

1 Preheat broiler. Put red peppers on broiler pan. Cook until skins are blistered and blackened, 10 minutes, turning frequently. Put in paper bag, seal tightly, and let steam 10 minutes. Peel away blackened skins from peppers, seed, and cut into chunks.

2 Meanwhile, lay filet flat on cutting board and slit lengthwise three-quarters of the way through. Open and press flat. Sprinkle with half the salt and pepper. Halve 1 garlic clove and rub over beef. Broil beef until done to taste, 3 minutes on each side for medium. Thinly slice.

3 Cook beans in boiling water until crisp-tender, 5 minutes. Drain; rinse immediately with cold water.

4 Mince remaining garlic clove. Whisk vinegar, oil, garlic, shallot, and remaining salt and pepper in small bowl. Divide mesclun among plates and arrange steak, red peppers, beans, and tomatoes on top. Drizzle with dressing.

ARIES ♈
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
What you need more than anything now is to get together with a group of people who share your tastes, interests and opinions.

TAURUS ♉
APRIL 21-MAY 21
You will be looking to treat yourself at every opportunity. And why not? You've done more than enough to deserve it.

GEMINI ♊
MAY 22-JUNE 21
You can feel your energy beginning to grow and already you are making plans on how best to use it. The next few weeks will bring many opportunities.

CANCER ♋
JUNE 22-JULY 22
Grab some time for yourself today. Your work schedule may be busy but you need to think about some more personal issues.

LEO ♌
JULY 23-AUG 23
You may have big plans but how practical are they? This is the question you need to ask yourself today.

VIRGO ♍
AUG 24-SEPT 22
Positive cosmic developments will fuel your sense of ambition today and over the weekend, but don't get carried away.

LIBRA ♎
SEPT 23-OCT 23
You are so full of self-belief that you want to be challenged so you can show what you can do. No doubt that will happen but don't go looking for a fight.

SCORPIO ♏
OCT 24-NOV 22
You will be looking for meaning in the world around you. Whether or not you find it remains to be seen, but look inside yourself too.

SAGITTARIUS ♐
NOV 23-DEC 21
A loved one may be under the impression that they have offended you, simply because you have been too busy to pay them much attention.

CAPRICORN ♑
DEC 22-JAN 20
There may be times today when you lose sight of your long-term goal, simply because there are so many little things to take care of.

AQUARIUS ♒
JAN 21-FEB 18
Everyone has a talent, something that they are naturally good at, and the planets are urging you to make better use of the gifts you were born with.

PISCES ♓
FEB 19-MARCH 20
The Sun's transit of the domestic angle of your chart over the next few weeks warns you must not let developments on the home front get to you.
